*Special Delivery ****

[Maxton, N.C]- In the early morning hours of Tuesday, February 23, 2021, officers of the Maxton Police Department responded to the Exxon Gas Station located at the intersection of Martin Luther King, Jr Blvd. and Florence Street for subject in need of assistance for an unknown medical issue.

While awaiting the arrival of the emergency ambulatory service, Officer Patrick Hunt was able to determine that the citizen was in labor. Officer Hunt with the assistance of Officer Christopher Parsons successfully delivered a healthy baby boy!

“Everyday the officers of Maxton are responding to the known and making a difference in the community they serve. Their actions on February 23rd demonstrate the core values of the Maxton Police Department.” says Chief Na'Shayla Nelson.

Mom and baby are doing well and congratulations to the family!
